HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHY: ANCIENT

PHIL 321 01 MW 4:00-5:15pm ONLINE Whitney Schwab

The history of major philosophical views from the pre-Socratics through Hellenistic philosophy, with special emphasis on the early and middle dialogues of Plato and the physical, ethical and metaphysical works of Aristotle.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

PHILOSOPHY OF LANGUAGE

PHIL 345 01 TTh 10:00-11:15am PAHB 108 Greg Ealick

A survey of philosophical issues concerning the nature of meaning, understanding, communication and language. Topics to be discussed may include the relations between meaning, intention and belief; the relationship between mental content and linguistic meaning; interpretation; the possibility of thought without language; the factual status of meaning and understanding; the nature of naming and referring; the relation between individual understanding and the physical and social environment.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

DEDUCTIVE LOGIC

PHIL 346 01 TTH 4:00-5:15pm SHERM 003 Lisa Cassell

An introduction to symbolized deductive logic, including the construction of formalized systems for traditional logic, the sentential calculus and first-order predicate calculus. These systems will be constructed semantically (as formalizations of deductive reasoning in natural languages) and syntactically (as uninterpreted systems).

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

PHILOSOPHY OF HUMOR

PHIL 369 01 MWF 12:00-12:50pm SOND 101 James Thomas

A survey of issues related to the question of whether and how humor can be defined and understood. A variety of psychological and philosophical theories of humor and the causes of laughter will be examined. Examples from different media, including stand-up comedy, podcasts, television, and film, will be used to test competing theories. Special attention will be paid to the ethical implications of offensive humor. Readings will be drawn from historical and contemporary sources.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: PHIL 100 or PHIL 150 or PHIL 152

EPISTEMOLOGY

PHIL 371 01 MW 1:00-2:15pm ONLINE Whitney Schwab

A survey of central issues concerning knowledge, belief and justification. Topics to be covered may include: a priori knowledge, perception, skepticism, the problem of other minds, self-knowledge, coherence and correspondence theories of knowledge and truth, internalist and externalist accounts of justification, foundationalism, naturalism and transcendental arguments. Readings will be drawn from historical and contemporary sources.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

PHILOSOPHY OF MIND

PHIL 380 01 MW 2:30-3:45pm ONLINE Steven Yalowitz

A survey of central issues about the nature of mind and its relation to the physical world. Topics to be discussed may include: the nature of belief, intention, desire, action, emotion, pain; special problems raised by consciousness; competing accounts of personal identity; competing conceptions of the relation between mental and physical states and events, the possibility of psychological laws, and how mental phenomena can play a causal/explanatory role in the physical world.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

METAETHICS

PHIL 450 01 MW 5:30-6:45pm PAHB 456 Eric Campbell

A close study of the nature of ethical discourse and its relations to the mind and the world. Topics to be considered include: whether there are ethical facts; naturalism vs. non-naturalism about ethical facts; the relationship between ethical judgments and personal attitudes; whether ethical judgments are inherently motivating; whether ethical judgments can be true or false; moral relativism; moral skepticism. Readings will be drawn from historical and contemporary sources.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: One 300 level course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, especially PHIL 350, PHIL 353, PHIL 380

CONSEQUENTIALISM AND ITS CRITICS

PHIL 451 01 TTh 5:30-6:45pm PAHB 456 Patrick Mayer

According to Consequentialism, the rightness or wrongness of an action, law, or institution is determined by the value of its consequences. While typically taken for granted in public policy debates, it is often rejected as an adequate moral theory, because it is too demanding in what it requires of moral agents and deviates too far from commonsense morality. This course starts with its classical formulation - Utilitarianism - and then looks at contemporary variants developed in response to these and other criticisms.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: One 300 level course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, especially PHIL 350, PHIL 353

ADVANCED TOPICS IN PHIL. OF SCIENCE: PHILOSOPHY OF SPACE AND TIME

PHIL 472 01 TTh 2:30-3:45pm PAHB 456 Christopher Arledge

An investigation into the philosophical implications of modern spacetime theories. Topics include the paradoxes of relativity of simultaneity, the reality of space and time in special and general relativity, the metaphysics of time, temporal perception, time travel and will conclude with a brief look at cutting edge work on black holes and cosmology. Emphasis will be placed on philosophical issues rather than mathematical or physical rigor. No prior background in college mathematics or physics will be presupposed. The minimal relevant physics will be taught along the way.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: One 300 level course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, especially PHIL 372, PHIL 394, PHIL 395, or a background in some particular science.

PARADOXES

PHIL 479 01 TTh 11:30am-12:45pm SHERM 108 Jessica Pfeifer

The course will examine some of the central paradoxes that have and continue to puzzle philosophers. A classic example of a paradox is the liar's paradox: 'This sentence is false.' If it is true, then it is false; if it's false, then it's true. Paradoxes have not only led to puzzlement, but also to revolutions in thought about various philosophical issues, such as the nature of truth, meaning, metaphysics, knowledge, and space and time. Amongst the paradoxes the course will consider are logical paradoxes (such as the liar's paradox), paradoxes of space and time, paradoxes of meaning, and paradoxes of knowledge.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: One 300 level course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, especially PHIL 346, PHIL 371, PHIL 372, PHIL 373, PHIL 380
