PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION

PHIL 210	01	TTh 11:30am-12:45pm	SOND 208	Joseph Wolfensberger
A critical examination of the nature and justification of religious belief. Topics to be discussed include the existence of God, the nature of religious belief, the problem of evil, the possibility of life after death, and the relation between religion and morality.

BUSINESS ETHICS

PHIL 253	01	M 5:30-6:45pm	ONLINE	Daniel Jenkins
This course looks closely at ethical issues that arise in the context of business practice and design. Topics to be considered include appropriate workplace conduct, pay equity, just employment practices, models of business management, and sustainable development. Analysis of cases exemplifying such issues will be conducted through the use of ethical theories built around different key aspects in our ordinary moral thinking and assessments, such as happiness, utility, duty, and virtuous character.

HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHY: ANCIENT

PHIL 321 01 MW 4:00-5:15pm M&P 104 Whitney Schwab

The history of major philosophical views from the pre-Socratics through Hellenistic philosophy, with special emphasis on the early and middle dialogues of Plato and the physical, ethical and metaphysical works of Aristotle.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

ASIAN PHILOSOPHY

PHIL 334 01 TTh 2:30-3:45pm PAHB 229 Joonho Lee

This course will consist of a critical survey of the major philosophical and spiritual traditions of India, China and Japan. The key concepts and principles of Hinduism, Jainism, Sikhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Buddhism, Zen Buddhism and Shintoism will be examined and discussed. Topics will include the difference in emphasis and approach between the philosophical thought of East and West, the conceptual relations between the various Asian traditions and the importance of the concept of enlightenment in Asian thought. Special attention will be given to the role that Asian philosophy has played in shaping Asian culture.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

DEDUCTIVE LOGIC

PHIL 346 01 TTh 10:00-11:15am SONND 107 Lisa Cassell

An introduction to symbolized deductive logic, including the construction of formalized systems for traditional logic, the sentential calculus and first-order predicate calculus. These systems will be constructed semantically (as formalizations of deductive reasoning in natural languages) and syntactically (as uninterpreted systems).

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

WELL-BEING AND HAPPINESS

PHIL 351 01 TTh 11:30am-12:45pm PAHB 229 Blake Francis

This course surveys theories of well-being, which concern what is good or bad for a person, and theories of happiness, which concern a psychological state of mind. Such theories include perfectionism, hedonism, desire-fulfillment, objective-list, and life-satisfaction theories. Issues to be discussed include whether well-being should be understood in terms of happiness, whether happiness can be measured, whether lifetime well-being is simply the sum of particular moments, and whether posthumous events can be bad or good for the person who dies.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

MORALITY AND PSYCHOLOGY

PHIL 353 01 MW 2:30-3:45pm M&P 106 Eric Campbell

An examination of some of the central issues connecting psychological research to ethical inquiry. Topics to be covered may include: psychological egoism; the nature of moral judgment and moral motivation and their relations; the role of reasoning vs. emotional processes in moral judgments; the social and evolutionary functions of moral sentiments and concepts; how psychological research might shape our understanding of and responses to the questions about whether morality is objective and whether we can be morally responsible for our actions.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: PHIL 150, PHIL 152, PHIL 350, or PSYC 100.

METAPHYSICS

PHIL 373 01 MWF 11:00-11:50am PAHB 108 James Thomas

A survey of central metaphysical concepts and themes in the Western philosophical tradition. Topics to be covered may include: identity, personal identity, causation, free will, the mind-body problem, properties, laws of nature, necessity, essentialism, realism and antirealism, and the existence of God. Readings will be drawn from historical and contemporary sources.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

PHILOSOPHY OF MEDICINE

PHIL 375 01 TTh 4:00-5:15pm PAHB 229 Jessica Pfeifer

This course explores fundamental questions about the nature of medical care and medical knowledge. It focuses on issues concerning the aims of medicine, our concepts and theories of health and disease, medical evidence and diagnosis, the patient-physician relationship, and a variety of ethical, political, and values questions about medical research and practice. These explorations touch on and draw from the tools of metaphysics, epistemology, philosophy of science, ethics, and public policy.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

DECISION THEORY

PHIL 430 01 TTh 1:00-2:15pm PAHB 456 Lisa Cassell

This course is a philosophical examination of decision theory, which attempts to give an account of how we should make decisions whose outcomes depend upon facts about which we are uncertain. Part of the course focuses on puzzle cases where competing approaches to decision making yield different results. Other topics to be considered include whether our best approaches to decision making are psychologically feasible, and whether and how decision theory should accommodate our different attitudes towards risk.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: One 300-level course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, especially PHIL 346, PHIL 371, PHIL 372, or PHIL 380.

MINDS, MACHINES, AND LOGIC

PHIL 477 01 MW 1:00-2:15pm PAHB 456 Greg Ealick

This course looks closely at the computational theory of mind, which holds that the human mind is a mechanical device that translates experience into representations and then operates on these representations according to their mechanical properties in order to produce thought and behavior. Topics to be considered in evaluating this theory include: the nature of intentionality and representation, the nature and limits of models, the coherence of self-reference, the ambiguity of rules, and the social dimension of concepts.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: One 300-level course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, especially PHIL 371, PHIL 373, or PHIL 380.

ADVANCED TOPICS: PHILOSOPHY OF CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

PHIL 499 01 MWF 10:00-10:50am PAHB 456 Robert Birt

What is civil disobedience, and on what grounds can it be justified? Drawing on such thinkers as Dr. Martin L. King, Nelson Mandela, Henry David Thoreau, Socrates, Sophocles and others, this class will explore the moral and philosophical foundations of civil disobedience, as well as what sorts of defiance of law and civil authority constitute civil disobedience.

Prerequisites: One course in philosophy with a grade of C or better, or permission of instructor.

Recommended Preparation: One 300-level course in philosophy with a grade of C or better
